Multiple phase effort to evolve JCP program
In response to needs of the developer community

- JSR 348: Transparency
- JSR 355: Merge the EC
- JSR 364: Broaden Participation
- JSR 387: Streamline the JCP program

JSR 387, Streamlining the JCP

- JSR completed Final Release, JCP version 2.11 is now in effect
  - https://jcp.org/en/jsr/detail?id=387
  - https://jcp.org/en/procedures/jcp2
- The JCP EC is the Expert Group (EG)
- The WG met six times, summaries published on the EC community site, discussed all items outlined in the JSR and reviewed the marked up doc; they are available here also:
  - https://community.oracle.com/docs/DOC-1015947

This JSR addresses the following needs

See section 2.4 of the JSR

- The primary focus of the JSR will be on streamlining the JCP program to reflect the current reality of development work happening in open source projects, with a code first, continuous delivery focus, including the JSR life cycle and milestones currently part of the JCP program. The JSR will implement changes that will build on the reforms that began with JSR 348 and continued with JSR 364, making the work of the JCP more open and transparent, and enabling broad participation. Items for discussion include:

  - Modification and addition of language around code first, collaborative RI development.

  - Changes to the stages of a JSR lifecycle as a result of the collaborative development process (see section 3.3, 3.4, 3.5 of the Process document) and the ability to allow multiple final releases of a JSR or automated renewal for Java Platform JSRs.

  - Modifications to Renewal Ballots and Dormant JSRs.

  - Changes to the Maintenance process.

  - Changes to the size, scope and responsibilities of the JCP Executive Committee (see section 3.7 of the Process document).

Next Steps and Action Items

- Topic for December 11 Public EC Meeting
- Migrate current JSRs to new version, JCP 2.11
- Collect feedback, minor maintenance based on feedback
